Lunatics Used as Horses.

A regular slave mart still exists in many country districts of Finland. Once a year such paupers, lunatics and aged people of each parish as cannot support themselves are put up at public auction and consigned to those farmers or families who will board them at the lowest price offered by the parish authorities. The helpless creatures are made to work as much as possible by their owners, who have the right to chastise them and are generally most inhuman in their treatment. Lunatics have been used even as cart horses.

Twenty Year Battle.

"I was a loser in a twenty year battle with chronic piles and malignant sores, until I tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve; which turned the tide, by curing both, till not a trace remains," writes A. M. Athletic Oratory.

After every speech he delivers Bourke Cockran is a sore man physically. Any one who has ever seen him in oratorical action knows why he is sore. The old flagellant monks were not much more cruel to themselves than Cockran is to himself. His favorite gesture is to slap his thighs, and it is no love tap he gives them. It's a good beating, Cockran is one of the old-school—muscular, desk pounding school of orators. If he could not hammer his desk and thump his thighs he would probably think his powers failing.

THE MAN FISH.

A Peculiar Animal With a Sort of Human Appearance.

There used to be traditions among the sailors of mermaids at sea, half women and half fish, and there are fishes which may have given rise to the belief, from their resemblance to human beings. One of these is called the man fish.

This animal inhabits the mouths of the Amazon, Orinoco and other South American rivers. Its name (manatee) has reference to the peculiar form of its swimming paws. These are composed of soft parts and a membrane which infolds the bones of the hands and fingers. But in the manatee four flat nails are seen attached to the edge of the paw.

The tail also is peculiar, being about one-fourth the length of the body and oval shaped, not unlike that of the otter. The head is round, attached to the body without a neck. The muzzle, in which the nostrils are placed, is large and fleshy, the upper lip cleft and bristled at the side, the lower lip much shorter and the mouth small.

When seen at a distance, with the anterior part of the body out of the water, they are sometimes taken for some creature approaching to human shape. The effect has been deepened by the thickest hairs of the muscle, giving somewhat the appearance of human hair or a beard. Thus the Spaniards and the Portuguese give the manatee a name which signifies woman fish, and the Dutch call it the dudong baarmannetje or little bearded man.

Had to be Waked Up for Sentence.

Chief Justice Murray of British New Guinea had an uncanny experience. He was about to sentence a native Papuan to death for murder when it was found that the culprit had lost all interest in the proceedings and had fallen fast asleep. In that sultry land of cannibals and head hunters the heinousness of murder is not yet adequately appreciated by the average native.—Ex.

JUDGE FREEMAN'S VIEWS

The Judge Writes an Instructive Letter on the Constitution of New State of Arizona.

Judge A. A. Freeman, president of a New Mexico statehood league recently organized in the Pecos valley, submits to the people of New Mexico the following letter, the sentiments of which can, for the most part, be safely reechoed by the citizens of New Mexico:

Office of the chairman, New Mexico Statehood League, Carlsbad, N. M., July 4, 1906.

To the People of New Mexico:

In a very short time the people of this territory will be called upon to hold an election for the selection of delegates to a convention to form a constitution for the new state of Arizona.

I shall not dwell upon the importance of this election. The weal or woe of the people of this territory for an indefinite period depends largely upon the wisdom to be exercised by them in this behalf.

It goes without saying that the very best men ought to be selected, without regard to their religious or political views.

The man who is so grossly ignorant of the gravity of the situation as to desire to make the election turn on the politics of the candidate, can not be reached by argument or reason and hence I have no suggestions to offer to him.

I desire, however, to present some views for the consideration and attention of intelligent and patriotic voters, as to what, in my opinion, the constitution should contain, for there are some matters on which candidates ought to be required to commit themselves in advance of their election. It will be fatal to the constitution if members are elected without knowing what they are expected to do and find on arriving at Santa Fe that their work has already been laid out by the few men who have purposes of their own to accomplish.

I am going, therefore, to suggest a few provisions that in my humble judgment should without fail be inserted in the constitution.

1. Gambling in all its forms should be prohibited.
2. The new state should not be permitted to assume any debt heretofore created by any county for railroad or other purposes.
3. No railroad doing business in the new state should be permitted to charge a greater freight or passenger rate than is charged to citizens of adjoining states.

4. No railroad should be permitted to issue free passes to anyone except those engaged exclusively in the business of such railroad.

4. No person elected to either branch of the legislature should be eligible to any appointment by the governor during the two years for which he was elected.

6. The legislature should be prohibited from increasing or diminishing the compensation of any officer during the term for which he was elected or appointed.

7. The legislators should be allowed an ample per diem compensation for a term of seventy-five days and actual traveling expenses for two trips from their homes to the capital.

8. No bill should become a law without having been read three times, in each house, each reading on a separate day.

9. In all suits involving twenty dollars in amount, either party should be entitled to a jury, and the judge should be without power to direct a verdict; and no more than two new trials should be granted on account of the failure of the jury to find the facts in accordance with the opinion of the judge.

10. The supreme court should consist of three judges, no more than two of whom should be residents of the same division of the state. One of the qualifications of the supreme or district judge should be that he has been in active practice in the territory for the last three years next preceding his election. Judges, both district and supreme, should be elected by the qualified voters.

11. Counties should be prohibited from creating any indebtedness except for strictly county purposes.

12. No legislation not applicable alike to all the counties and to all the citizens should be allowed.

I cannot, of course, outline all the provisions required in a good constitution, for to do this would be to write a constitution. I have, therefore, endeavored to outline what I deem to be the most essential features.

Unless the anti-pass clause is adopted it will avail but very little to form a constitution of any character. As well turn the whole matter over to the railroads, and let them make their own rules and regulations, as they have been doing in the past. We have eleven volumes of supreme court reports, but not an anti-railroad decision can be found in any one of them. So long as the railroads are allowed the indiscriminate use of the free pass system, just so long will they control the government in all its branches.

An effort is going to be made to saddle onto the new state the railroad indebtedness of Santa Fe, Grant and Pima counties.

There is no justice in requiring counties not at all interested in these railroads to pay a part of the debt created by other counties.

I would prohibit the legislature from increasing the salary of an officer already elected, and thus break up the custom of forming in the legislature a salary lobby. I would prohibit the governor from forming in the legislature a combination to carry out his private views, and would, therefore, deprive him of the power to appoint any member of the legislature to an office.

I would pay members of the legislature their traveling expenses, and give them an opportunity to visit their homes at least once without cost, so that they would not be absolutely at the mercy of the railroads.

I would pay the judges and other officers their necessary traveling expenses. It is too much to expect judges, governors, congressmen, legislators and other public officers to be disinterested and indifferent as between the people and the railroads, while the latter are paying all of their traveling expenses.

Much better have the people foot these bills and have an independent judiciary.

I am in favor of the election of judges, as well as other officers, and that on the broad principle that the people are entitled to select their own servants. Bad judges may be elected; so, also, bad congressmen may be elected. If it were permissible under the constitution of the United States, I would have United States senators elected by the people. All good governments are organized for the good of the governed. The people are the sufferers. I would rather trust the people to
